Learning the Lessons Of The MathWorks

CATLIN & COOKMAN GROUP

Mastering the Art of Corporate Growth

An executive applauds The MathWorks for its commitment to communicating its mission, vision and values (see the Dilemmas Archive) -- and laments that his company could very well learn a lesson from its success.

I am very impressed with the way MathWorks communicated. They appear to be close enough to share ideas but still provide the space that is required to promote creativity. The lack of this type of communication was the downfall of my current organization, FoxMeyer Corporation. The president created a statement of "Mission, Vision, and Values" but the organization never grasped them or accepted them. They were not involved in the creation and therefore did not participate in the implementation. We also lagged well behind in our utilization of technology in order to improve company-wide communication. It was not until about 6 months ago that we had an on-line E-Mail system. Even today, that E-Mail system is only effective within the corporate office and not the 23 distribution centers. Each distribution center has only one computer that is linked to the E-Mail sever. Unfortunately the corporate office has everything and the distribution center is lastr. This is backwards.

We are currently paying for being cheap with our communication strategy and not embracing a strategic direction and mission. FoxMeyer is grinding through Chapter 11. The most amazing part of the Chapter 11 struggle is that once some of the political players were removed, the communication got better and things started to happen. We are infinitely more informed and can respond much faster. It is very unfortunate that we had to learn this lesson by filing Chapter 11. We can only hope that we have learned it fast enough to emerge as a reorganized entity.

Thank you for creating this forum. I am an avid reader and a student of business with a never ending thirst for knowledge. This additional source of reading has provided me with another source of learning through others successes and mistakes. I hope that others benefit as much as I believe that I will.

Thanks again!

Sincerely,
David Silko, Vice President, Customer Relations

The Bottom-Line Impact Experienced by our Clients

High-Growth CEO Forums™

“The job of the CEO is inherently and unapologetically isolating. The High-Growth CEO Forum offers a refreshingly honest and sincere source of support and advice from peers who live on similar quarterdecks. Its format and strong facilitation differentiate it from other groups I have seen. The Forum is one of the most effective feedback and personal development mechanisms available to a CEO. It has made me a more effective leader and a happier, more balanced human being.”

Colin Angle, CEO of iRobot which had a successful IPO in November 2005 establishing a market cap over $700 million. He was also E&Y Entrepreneur of the Year winner in 2003.

"I am a strong advocate for the CEO Forum. I grew and sold my last company for 5X more than it was worth when I started as CEO. There is no way I could have done that without the Forum. The quality of the people and input I got from them along the way was invaluable. We are all dealing with the same issues, just different context and timeframes. As you know, a CEO's biggest challenge is prioritizing – especially his/her time. The fact that most of this team never misses a meeting speaks volumes about the value proposition! As an aside, my current company is less than a year old and our last round post money was already 5X the first!"

Paul DiGiammarino, President & CEO of Anaqua. After a successful exit, Paul is again a Forum member.

“The Catlin & Cookman Group community was my most valued sounding board when I was CEO of eRoom – no other constituency could offer the direct, trusted and knowledgeable feedback a CEO needs when in the line of fire. Not the board, not my management team and certainly not my spouse. The CEO Forum provided me the opportunity to step back from the trees, reassess my long-term vision and strategy and gain clarity on often difficult and complex issues – and over time I built some fabulous friendships.”

Jeffrey Beir, former CEO eRoom Technology, and currently General Partner, North Bridge Venture Partners. Jeffrey was an E&Y Entrepreneur of the Year winner in 2003

“The Catlin & Cookman Group’s High-Growth CEO Forum was a major contributor to giving me the ideas and inspiration as an entrepreneurial CEO that led to winning the Entrepreneur of the Year Award.”

Dan Schimmel, former CEO of OneSource Information Services and an E&Y Entrepreneur of the Year winner in 2001.

“Given my scars and collective experiences, I would have thought that by now there would be nothing I could learn from a group such as this, but I am amazed at the insights I get from experienced and even newly appointed CEO's... I don't recall ever making a similar endorsement.”

Gene Robinson, CEO of I-Logix, Inc

High-Growth Consulting

“I’ve always been an entrepreneur, and one of the things I learned early on was that I couldn’t get any synergy in my business until I had a group of people working as entrepreneurs together. We have that now at Monster.com as a result of our work with the Catlin & Cookman Group, and we also have a plan in place that will guide our future growth while helping us preserve our unique culture even as we add more and more employees here and around the world.”

Jeff Taylor, Founder and Chief Monster, Monster.com

"The Catlin & Cookman Group has been an invaluable partner for Authoria - amazing people and processes for providing insight and peer-review, and for driving powerful ideas into action."

Tod Loofbourrow, CEO of Authoria Inc.

“When facing a difficult issue on my management team, or for the company as a whole, a quick call to my Catlin & Cookman Group consultant always provides an enlightened and unbiased point of view that helps bring clarity to the decision that must be made. I consider the Catlin & Cookman Group to be a vital member of my team.”

John Rizzi, CEO of e-Dialog
